these were questions I would have asked Senator Kremer, were speaking on advancement or lack thereof of the bill. I want the definition of contaminants. Senator Kremer, would you mind answering the question? What's the definition of contaminants of water?

SENATOR KREMER: In my opinion...

SENATOR DICKINSON: I mean if they aren't, they aren't outlined in here but that's what bothers me.

SENATOR KREMER: I mean that's an easy question to answer, Senator.

SENATOR DICKINSON: Would you turn Senator Kremer's mike on please?

SENATOR KREMER: I would think it would be relatively easy to define contaminants. It contaminates water. It could be bacteria, it could be foreign material, it could be a number of things that contaminates would be contaminants in my opinion.

SENATOR DICKINSON: Okay, well thank you, Senator. I would like to suggest that the federal government eventually, they are going to have their hands in this whether the State Health Department does it or not. They are going to call iron a contaminate and this is in their literature. In the water in my well on my farm is very hard. We use a water softener for domestic purposes but in no way does it harm anything except liming up the hot water heater. I don't want the federal government to come in here telling us that Nebraska has bad water. We were asked the question in regard to the pesticide bill, what is the problem? Where has it been outlined? I'm sure there might be a rare instance of problems but I have been fooling around with testing my water for a long time and long before I had what was considered an approved well and I was selling grade A milk and no time did anybody ever find bad water. But under the criteria of the federal bureaucrats out of Washington, they are going to call it bad. This just scares me to death. I don't know whether we dare follow Senator Mills suggestion and tell them to go you know where or not. But it might not be too bad an idea. That sometime someplace some area we've got to do this. In Nebraska of all places has, does not have a real drinking water problem. Thank you, Mr. President.

PRESIDENT: Senator Schmit. Again, this is the motion to kill.

SENATOR SCHMIT: Mr. President, members of the legislature, I rise in opposition to Senator Mills motion to kill at this time. I think that perhaps Senator Kremer should have more adequate time to explain the bill. I'm a little bit concerned that Senator Mills was opposed to the idea that the Ag Committee espoused in which we resented the intrusion of the federal government in the lives of Nebraskans and in this case he says let them come in. So I think at this time I would have to be opposed to the motion although I might actually be opposed to the bill when it finally gets fully discussed.
