LB 559, 559A

all the microfilming equipment is in the possession of the state Records Administrator regardless of which branch of government is using the equipment or how it was originally funded. However, there are provisions if there were federal funds used for the original purchase of the equipment that that value that the agency has in the form of federal funds will be applied toward their charges for the use of the equipment. It also sets up the same kind of a system we've talked in other areas where the charges that are made by the agency will be at a level that will provide funds for the replacement of equipment as it is necessary, and again it will permit us to maximize the benefit of federal funds where available in the various agencies. It also has the concept that as sale of surplus microfilm equipment occurs that the sale of those surplus equipment would be returned to the revolving fund for the agency and in turn then would be used for the purchase of or replacement of that equipment. In addition, it does provide additional language in Section 5 to provide safeguards against unauthorized access to confidential criminal records in addition to the medical records that was put in by the Committee. The rest of the sections are all internal references reflecting the changes that I have described.
