

January 28, 1985

SPEAKER NICHOL PRESIDING

SPEAKER NICHOL: ...this morning by Dr. Robert Palmer of the Presbyterian Church.

DR. PALMER: (Prayer offered.)

SPEAKER NICHOL: Thank you, Dr. Palmer. Roll call please. Record, Mr. Clerk.

ASSISTANT CLERK: Quorum present, Mr. President.

SPEAKER NICHOL: If I could have your attention a minute. (Gavel.) If I could have your attention a minute, please. Tomorrow we do something different. We start at nine o'clock tomorrow. Now you'll notice on your agenda for today that it says ten, but that is supposed to be nine. The reason we are starting at nine is that we have two controversial things to discuss tomorrow. First is the chemigation bill, as to where it shall be referenced, and the second one is the Commonwealth resolution. So we will start at nine so that we will be through by noon. I don't know how much discussion and debate these two will provoke, but I anticipate considerable. Of course, we want you all to have as much time to speak on it...speak about it as you like. So, remember, tomorrow morning at nine. Then we will continue to meet at nine from now on, of course, because you all know that we have hearings in the afternoons, and we'll meet here in session in the mornings at nine from now on. We'll meet every day, of course, this week. So there isn't anything new about that. That takes care of the announcements that I have. We have a resolution coming in, I believe, so we will stay in existence for a few minutes at least. I would like to recognize Senator Arlene Nelson who has something to say to you. Senator Nelson.

SENATOR NELSON: Mr. President, I would like to acknowledge a guest of mine today. Scott Zersen of Doniphan, Nebraska. Stand up, Scott. He is President of the Kearney State Student Body and a neighbor boy of mine, neighbor boy that made good. Scott is majoring in political science and economics. I'm very pleased to have him with us today.

SPEAKER NICHOL: Would you please welcome Scott to our body. Thank you, Scott, and do it right out there from now on. Mr. Clerk, do you have something to read?