

SENATOR GOODRICH: Okay. I would like to add another concept to your amendment. The idea is this. If I, say, give a patrolman a credit card that has been cancelled by the bank but not surrendered by me, I am literally hoodwinking the patrolman in that vein. So, in essence, if I use that kind of a situation, I want the same penalty to apply as giving them a bad check. Do you have any problem with that?

SENATOR VICKERS: No, I don't have any problems with that at all. In other words, you are saying that the same penalty that I put in with this amendment would apply to a credit card if it was outdated.

SENATOR GOODRICH: Well, no, not if it was outdated, it was not in effect.

SENATOR VICKERS: In other words, you are saying it was not a valid credit card.

SENATOR GOODRICH: It was not a valid credit card (interruption)...

SENATOR VICKERS: No, I don't have any problems with that at all.

SENATOR GOODRICH: Okay, Mr. President, the amendment is on the desk. Mr. President, the amendment is on the desk. Dick Brown has just drafted it for me and I would like to propose that amendment to the Vickers amendment, and what it does then is it adds a feature to the penalty part of this bill that if they use an invalid credit card, they also are penalized in the same vein that they would have been had they given an insufficient fund check.

SENATOR BEUTLER: Okay, Mr. Clerk, would you read the amendment to the amendment.

CLERK: Mr. President, Senator Goodrich would move to amend Senator Vickers's amendment. (Read Goodrich amendment as found on page 895 of the Legislative Journal.)

SENATOR BEUTLER: Okay, Senator Goodrich, you have explained the amendment to the amendment. Is there anyone who cares to address the amendment to the amendment? Senator Hoagland, your light was on. Did you care to address
