

anymore and fell over the viaduct on a train track and the train ran over her and somehow she didn't die, we should not say the hospital and the doctors ought not minister to that woman because she made a volitional act and put herself in that situation so she ought to suffer from it. Those arguments that have been given have no validity. I've got something that I thought about from a song and it attaches to what Senator Hoagland was talking about as far as leaving the women's commission safe. Senator Hoagland, we need a hostage. The song said, "I plop down in my easy chair and turned on Channel 2, a fast gunslinger named Salty Sam was chasing poor Sweet Sue; he trapped her in the old sawmill and said with an evil laugh, if you don't give me the deed to your ranch, I'll say you all in half." And then he grabbed her and he tied her up, he turned on the buzz saw and then along came this fellow named Jones, slow walking Jones, slow talking Jones, along came long lean lanky Jones and saved poor Sweet Sue, but she had a few other problems along the way but when the song was over Sue had been saved. The guy who likes to watch the television programs had been satisfied because justice was done. Here today...

SPEAKER NICHOL: One minute.

SENATOR CHAMBERS: ...we have a situation where, Senator Hoagland, I want to tie Sweet Sue and put her on the railroad track and the only way we get Sue off the track is to make sure that the other two who are closer to the train than Sweet Sue will be rescued also and maybe those who can understand and commiserate with poor Sweet Sue will see how the rest of us feel about the other two would-be victims and help us to rescue ours, then we'll pool our resources, we'll save poor Sweet Sue and the other two.

SPEAKER NICHOL: Senator Hoagland, please.

SENATOR HOAGLAND: Question.

SPEAKER NICHOL: The question has been called. Do I see five hands? I do. The question is, shall debate cease. All those in favor vote aye, opposed nay. Record, Mr. Clerk, please.

CLERK: 26 ayes, 0 nays to cease debate, Mr. President.

SPEAKER NICHOL: Debate has ceased. Senator Chambers, no,
