

we have telephone books that don't come from the telephone company. Do they extend to those telephone books the same limitation on liability? No, just for the phone company's yellow pages. They have these special rules that limit their liability. Time and time again in this bill you'll find things like this, inadequacies in which the public well-being is not served, only telephone company's interests being well served. Sixty days is inadequate. This amendment does not go nearly far enough in making this amendment any better, or any more the captive of one economic interest that parades itself as the public interest.

PRESIDENT: Senator Hefner.

SENATOR HEFNER: Mr. President and members of the body, at the present time we are on Senator DeCamp's amendment where he changes the 30 days to 60 days.

PRESIDENT: That's correct.

SENATOR HEFNER: Okay, I think that's still too short a time. I would like to see a 90 day notice. I don't feel that that much can be accomplished in 60 days. Also, in his amendment on page 5 and I think Senator Smith addressed this, if a proper complaint signed by no less than 5 percent of the affected subscribers is presented to the commission within 60 days from the date notice of the rate change was sent to subscribers. I feel that that's too short a time too. That should probably be lengthened to 90 days. And then there is another one. The commission shall accept and file a complaint and upon proper notice shall hold and complete a hearing thereon within 60 days after filing. Senator DeCamp, I would suggest that be lengthened a little bit, too. I think these 60 days time schedule is just too short. I just thought I'd alert the body to that.

PRESIDENT: Senator Lamb, do you wish to speak any further on this particular amendment? Senator Schmit, do you wish to speak on this particular amendment?

SENATOR SCHMIT: Only briefly, I would oppose the amendment because again, as I said earlier, I do not believe it sufficiently improves the bill to make it palatable to the point that you can go back to your constituents and argue that you did the right thing.
