LB 600A

the director, but most assuredly, if we pass this and most of us read a headline that says the speed limit is now 70 miles an hour on the interstate, the headline won't say as is bigger print, effective September 15th, 1987. We'll assume it's now and it would be reasonable to assume that and then we will see people driving accordingly and then we will be out of compliance and we can run the chance on that, too, if you like. They'll maybe never do the sanctions. I see no merit, no rationale to make that decision now to lay out that potential, to increase the odds of being out of compliance even though they may never do anything. There is no justification for that. If you wish to pass a resolution to tell the federal government, then do it in that fashion, do it with a resolution, not with a statute.
