

SENATOR V. JOHNSON: ...the a....

SENATOR CHAMBERS: ...the baby brother of the real monster, a monsterette?

SENATOR V. JOHNSON: That's probably a monsterette.

SENATOR CHAMBERS: But the point is, there are benefits that they can derive without doing anything other than providing enough information to get the agreement entered into.

SENATOR V. JOHNSON: Senator Chambers, there are some limited benefits they can derive if they don't perform, but we do recapture those.

SENATOR CHAMBERS: If the operation stays...

SENATOR V. JOHNSON: Oh, yes, you're right.

SENATOR CHAMBERS: ...in business long enough to have something to recapture.

SENATOR V. JOHNSON: We're no different in this whole situation than is Korshoj Lumber Company up in Herman. You know, we're giving a little credit to some of these guys and we hope they'll pay, but in a few cases they may not pay, they may go belly up.

SENATOR CHAMBERS: It could be a very good looking...

SENATOR V. JOHNSON: ...a wonderful proposal.

SENATOR CHAMBERS: ...project...

SENATOR V. JOHNSON: That's right.

SENATOR CHAMBERS: It could be fly-by-night, but nobody knows until maybe three years into it.

SENATOR V. JOHNSON: I don't think they would name a corporation fly-by-night, but it could be exactly that.

SENATOR CHAMBERS: No, no they wouldn't, that's why nobody knows that's what it is.

SENATOR V. JOHNSON: No, I understand.
