that no one can explain. It is made of deep devotion and of sacrifice and pain. It is endless and unselfish and enduring, come what may, for nothing can destroy it or take that love away. It is patient and forgiving when all others are forsaking. And it never fails or falters, even though that heart is breaking. It believes beyond believing when the world around condemns. And it glows with all the beauty of the rarest, brightest gems. It is far beyond defining, it defies all explanation. And it still remains a secret, like the mysteries of creation. A many splendored miracle man cannot understand, and another wondrous evidence of God's tender, loving hand. By Helen Stiner Rice. And I think that poem says everything. In my choosing my mother as a woman that I will always remember and love and respect, and I know that goes for every member of my family. She will never, never make the history books, but she certainly has made it to the hearts of 17 children and their spouses and the grandchildren. Thank you.
