

justice at the university, that that should be a college or university course training and not through the industry, itself, as a low-paid intern. One of...well, I guess there is several things in this bill that I do like. I think that with some work, and I would be willing to work with Senator Beyer, that this bill, indeed, would be an improvement on the present system, and some protections for the qualifications of our private investigators and our private detectives. With that, I guess I will be voting against the bracket motion.

PRESIDENT MOUL: Thank you, Senator Pirsch. Does anyone else wish to address this motion? Seeing none, do you have closing, Senator Chambers?

SENATOR CHAMBERS: Madam President and members of the Legislature, the reality, as pointed out by Senator Schimek, is that there are not many people here. There is no way that I can support this bill. If the bracket motion does not succeed, then I would have to change my approach to one of defeating the bill any way under the rules that that can be done because I think it is very bad legislation. There is no way, in my opinion, that it can be rewritten on the floor, because I don't think there are enough people interested to really work, and I don't have the time between now and the end of the session to redo all of this alone. And I wouldn't promise to undertake to do that. Also, as Senator Beyer said, and now it won't be offensive if I say it, I agree with him that none of us know enough about this industry to really undertake a regulation of it in this fashion. That being the case, it would not make good sense, and it would not be responsible legislating with what has been presented to us this morning by way of the discussion to move a bill such as this. We know that it is not constitutional. We know that in similar situations where less blanket authority was given than this bill gives, that the Attorney General has ruled such to be unconstitutional, as an unconstitutional delegation of our legislative authority. There is not enough legislative guidance, restriction, and limitation contained in this bill. No matter what we, as a Legislature, want to do, we cannot make the Secretary of State an independent legislator cloaked with legislative authority. I agree with Senator Beyer that there needs to be regulation. I had in the past attempted to bring bills to, in a comprehensive way, regulate the area of security guards, and we had some hearings, and very interesting information was developed during those hearings. With the discussion that has transpired this morning, the people in the
