one of fairness. If it is not...it is not fair to impose sales tax on transporting or the transportation for mailing circulars from one location rather than another when the costs are paid by the same entity and the circulars are going to the same ultimate destination. This is merely a technicality and the retailers are paying a heavy price for it. Taxes should be ordered and fair. There is no justifiable reason why this tax should be imposed in one case and not in the other, which they are identical. The Postmaster General for the United States is very concerned that Nebraska is charging sales tax on postage and is not aware of any other state that are doing this. The postmaster is also considering action to stop this process. In addition, this current policy only encourages companies to move their printing shops out of this state. If they move their companies out of state, then they do not have to pay the charges to their customers for this sales tax. It's essentially...it essentially gives us an unfair advantage to printing companies outside of our borders. It's my hope that you will be able to take a serious look at this issue. If you have any questions, I would be more than happy to try to explain them to you. With that, I just want to tell you that one company in particular has bought another warehouse outside of the state of Nebraska and are looking at possibly, if this isn't resolved, possibly moving that printing shop which the company owns, which the stockholders own, moving it to another state in the warehouse in Kansas that they have just recently purchased. And I would imagine that there are approximately 25 employees that work in this print shop who are paying income tax and sales tax on the goods that they purchase. And it wouldn't be much of a problem for this company to move that particular print shop. It's an unfair...I think it's an unfair tax, but the way the statutes are right now it permits...it permits the Department of Revenue to do this. And if you talk about transportation, any type of postage in my opinion it is transportation. You're moving a product, even a letter, that's transportation. You do not pay sales tax when you buy a roll of stamps at the post office. You're not paying sales tax on that postage. With that, I would entertain some...any questions you might have or have others discuss it pro or con. But I think it's an important matter that we need to look at. The one company right now is in the Court of Appeals appealing a decision in the district court. So that's where we're at right now. I have brought this to the
