toward him. What he did was so unthinkable, is the way it's described. It's not unthinkable. It's not really surprising. Things which might be shocking are not necessarily surprising. He was scheduled to be produced by this country. Him or somebody with a different name but who is just like him. This country produces people like Timothy McVeigh. Fortunately for the country, not everybody will act on what they feel in the way that McVeigh did. Not being a fool, McVeigh has probably read about Jesus, at least he probably heard about him; read about Hitler or heard about him; and knows that both of those men after they were dead took on far more significance to everybody than they had while alive. The same he feels, I'm sure, will happen in his case because he's a martyr to a cause. He is a man who is going to lose his life for his faith, if he decides to die. Hitler had to die. Jesus came here to die so he really had no choice in the matter, if the story is true, if there was a Jesus. But for my purposes, say there was. Timothy McVeigh doesn't have to die, if there is a way around it. If there had been no blunders by the FBI, today would be his last day on this earth, but the FBI spared him. Death's jaws were yawning. The fangs were dripping. There was anticipation, just like when you're very hungry and you think about dill pickles and you feel that drawing at the root of your tongue. That's the way death was and it could only be satisfied by closing his fangs on Timothy McVeigh and claiming him. But even death, after having been infuriated by McVeigh for not being afraid, also lost its hold on McVeigh. People get angry because they say he might be laughing. Well, for heaven's sakes, for goodness sakes, brothers and sisters, if you're going to kill a man shouldn't he be able to do what he wants to do? What more can you do to him? You say, I don't want you to laugh. He says, make me stop laughing. They say the only way we could make you stop laughing I guess is to put an iron mask over your face. He says, why won't you do that? Well, the Constitution won't let us do that. What do you mean? That would be considered cruel and unusual punishment. So McVeigh throws his head back and laughs again and says, you cannot do the lesser thing but you can do the greater thing. They say, well, what do you mean by that, McVeigh? You cannot put a metal mask on my face because that is cruel but you can put needles in my arm and pump poison into me. You can do the poisoning but you can't do the masking? And
