face to them and say, do what you will, we did what we did and we stand by it? No, they asked for mercy. They said, we told on ourself; please give us mercy. Why is it that a university which begs mercy will not show mercy? This young man did nothing wrong; Nebraska did, and Nebraska was shown mercy by the NCAA and Nebraska begged for mercy. And now, because a young person is helpless, he is going to suffer the brunt of all the wrongful misdeeds at the university?

SENATOR CUDABACK: Time. You may continue, Senator Chambers.

SENATOR CHAMBERS: Going to suffer for all the misdeeds at the university that have brought shame on the university. I don't care a finger pop for the UNL football program. I care even less for Frank Solich. I have absolutely no respect for a cowardly man who will do what he did, and if I were to find a helpless individual and I would walk on him, I would be worse than a coward. This...reason I say he's only a coward, because I set a higher on myself than I do a mere football coach. He's got a football for a head and a basketball for brains, no mercy, no decency, no respect for human values, no respect for the Fourth Commandment, no respect for a young man who, in his life, is living out the principles that UNL says that football team produces. Don't you all read in the paper how much good they do? Where is the good when time comes to act? This is one of the reasons I have so much contempt for religion and people who profess it, because when time comes to put it into play, they are always weighed in the balance and found wanting. There is always a huge space between what they profess and what they do. Who did this young man wrong? What sin did he commit? Reminds of a time that there was a blind man and his...Jesus' disciplines, they were about as dumb as some of the people around Nebraska, they said, Lord, who did sin that this man was born blind, his parents? Jesus said, nobody sinned, fool. Now the Bible doesn't report where he said that, but under the circumstances I believe he probably would have said something like that or its equivalent. This man was born blind in order that the power and greatness of God can be displayed, and Jesus took away the man's blindness. So I ask you all, what sin did this young man commit? What sin did his parents commit against the University of Nebraska? You all may think Solich owns these
