Existing statutory provisions governing distribution of amounts appropriated for aid to community college areas provide for computation of amounts to be distributed to tribally controlled community colleges by community college areas in which such institutions are located. Two tribally controlled community colleges currently operate in Nebraska. The Nebraska Indian Community College (NICC) and Little Priest Tribal College are both located within the Northeast Community College Area. Current law directs the Northeast Community College Area Board of Governors to transfer tribally controlled community college state aid amounts to these two tribal colleges from state aid amounts distributed to Northeast. LB797 would effectively amend computation of tribally controlled community college state aid amounts and would alter distribution of state aid appropriated for community college areas.

Assuming that (1) the provisions of LB797 had been in effect for purposes of 2005-06 community college state aid distribution and (2) tribal college enrollment counted for purposes of current aid distribution represents 25% of total tribal college enrollment; the following represents a comparison of estimated 2005-06 community college state aid distribution under provisions of LB797 versus actual distribution of 2005-06 community college state aid.
