LB 676 prohibits any person from occupying or blocking any public highway, street, or alley in any city of the first class, second class or village with freight or passenger cars, locomotives, or with any other rolling stock for more than ten minutes at time. State and local law enforcement officers may issue citations for such violations. Upon conviction, a fine of not less than $500 nor more than $5,000 shall be imposed. Section 1 (3) provides for certain exemptions.

The citation provisions of the bill could result in revenue increases, but those amounts cannot be determined due to the range of fines and the unknown frequency of such violations.
