LB 448 would repeal the statutory authorization for the Game and Parks Commission to hold a mountain lion hunting season.

The first and only hunting season for mountain lions was in 2014. The Commission has indicated that revenue received from the $25 application fee and the permit auction proceeds totaled $53,445 in 2014.

Based on this limited experience, due to 2014 being the only season, there is a potential revenue loss due to the elimination of the authority to hold a mountain lion hunting season. Whether or not a hunting season is implemented each year is up to the Commission based on their opinion on whether the mountain lion population is large enough to allow hunting. Since it is uncertain when the next season will be held the revenue loss is estimated to range from $0 in those years when no mountain lion season would have been established, to $53,000 in those years when there would have been a season.

With the elimination of the hunting season the Commission anticipates an increase in requests for them to address mountain lion related issues. Any related increase in workload can be absorbed by the Commission's current staffing and budget.

Explanation of Estimate:

The proposed legislation would eliminate provisions related to hunting mountain lions.

Regulated hunting seasons are among the tools the Nebraska Game and Parks Commission uses to manage game species in Nebraska. A mountain lion season was authorized in 2014 involving two different hunting units (Pine Ridge and Prairie). A total of $53,445 in application/license fees and auction proceeds had been raised under the 2014 Mountain Lion hunting season.

No season has been currently set. Future seasons, if established, will be based on year-specific management objectives and thus could vary from the 2014 season. Passage of this legislation could result in a loss of approximately $54,000 annually in those years that might have a season, provided similar harvest quota's and units were established.

While the proposed legislation leaves intact the ability for the Commission to authorize kill permits for cases of depredation, an increase in costs would be anticipated related to an expected increase in response needs associated with mountain lion issues with the elimination of the management tools currently available (i.e. hunting regulations). Additionally, since the Commission's management responsibilities for mountain lions would remain, costs for monitoring population levels would continue, albeit at the expense of other game fund revenue sources. Costs are not readily determinable and would likely merely result in a reprioritization of other duties.
