Introduction

The Administrative Office of the Courts and Probation is within the judicial branch of government. In performing its function, Probation strives to achieve intertwined goals of community safety, risk reduction, and behavior change. Trusted and valued by Nebraska’s courts and citizens, Probation’s dedicated professional staff has provided quality investigations, supervision, and service for over 50 years.

While there is significant carryover in the number of individuals served over each six-month reporting period, between January 1, 2023, and June 30, 2023, there were 21,186 unique individuals served by probation in Nebraska, including 17,569 adult and 3,617 juvenile probationers in both regular and intensive programs. Probation officers across the state work within a range of probation programs to assess, supervise, educate, and refer probationers to a host of treatment and skill-building programs. Probation officers assess individual's risk of re-offending and criminogenic needs, as well as determine the skills they require to make amends to victims/communities and avoid further criminal and/or delinquent behavior. Probationers are supervised within the community according to their assessed risk of re-offending, and they are referred to appropriate community-based treatment and skill-based programs, based on their assessed needs. Caseload standards are presently modeled after the American Probation and Parole Association’s evidenced-based research. Nebraska Probation has recently completed a comprehensive workload study and is working diligently to implement the results of that study. The 2023 Legislature allocated 20 officers identified as needed to accomplish this implementation. The first 10 of these officers are eligible for hire as of July 1, 2023. Probation is currently undertaking a comprehensive review of resources across the state to determine where personnel allocations are needed to fully implement the workload study findings.

During the first half of 2023, juvenile probation has worked to examine juvenile justice practices through the Juvenile Justice System Enhancement Nebraska (JJSSEN) project. We continue to work with our partners to assess and prioritize the recommendations from the system review. In relation to our work with Adult Probation and Post Release Supervision (PRS), we are committed to evidence-based practices and continuous improvement.

Nebraska Probation is driven by the understanding that a system founded on research-supported, evidence-based policies and practices will produce positive individual outcomes in addition to meeting our goals.

OUR GOALS

- Provide courts with effective sentencing and dispositional recommendations
- Reduce juvenile and criminal justice recidivism
- Provide for more efficient and effective use of Probation’s limited staff resources
- Support community-based programs and services initiatives to reduce prison overcrowding and out-of-home placement for youth
- Enhance community safety, risk reduction, and behavior change

ADULT PROBATION

Adult Probation Population Served by Felony/Misdemeanor
Jan - June 2023

Nebraska Probation uses a public safety approach to case management. Probationers are prioritized for supervision and treatment services according to an assessment of their risk of reoffending using a normed and validated actuarial-based risk assessment tool, measuring risk, need, and responsivity.

- The highest level of supervision while on probation is Community-Based Intervention (CBI), which is equivalent to intensive supervision probation as referred to in statute. This supervision combines intensive supervision and treatment resources to maximize community safety. On June 30, 2023, there were a total of 5,254 individuals on CBI or 48% of the total adult population.
- Individuals supervised at the Community-Based Resources (CBR) level include 35% of individuals or a total of 3,866. CBR supervision levels are guided by responsive case management standards and are equivalent to regular probation as referred to in the statute.

ADULT INVESTIGATIONS

Investigations provide the court with timely, relevant, and accurate information about an individual prior to the sentencing of a case. A presentence investigation (PSI) is used for high-risk individuals, and/or those convicted of felonies, and Class I misdemeanors, as well as those who may be convicted of lower-level crimes but score higher on validated risk assessments. While a presentence report (PSR) is used for those convicted of lower-level crimes and score medium or low on the risk assessment and provides the court with information regarding the probationer's background and criminal history. It includes victim impact statements, individuals statements, the official version of the offense, and the probation officer's summary to the court. This information is provided to the court in order to determine the sentencing of an individual.

The presentence investigation is used by the court to render a fair and appropriate sentence. The report contains the officer's analysis of factors presented through an interview with the individual and other information collected throughout the process. Probation officers complete a research-based, actuarial assessment of each individual that helps to identify specific risk to re-offend, need factors, and responsivity. Factors explored include past criminal history, family history, and family support, educational and employment history, current status, alcohol/drug or mental health concerns, and overall attitude regarding the offense. Officers work through the assessments to not only identify criminogenic factors driving risk, but also areas of strength for the individual. From there, the officer will investigate the history and current status of the individual through the collection of information from a variety of sources including the individual's employer, treatment providers and/or evaluators, family and friends, and victims. All of this information is analyzed to assist the officer in preparing a document for the court. In many jurisdictions across the state, the probation officer is required to use their skills of analysis and investigation to make a recommendation to the court regarding targeted interventions based on the individual's assessment.

Adult Presentence Investigations & Presentence Reports Jan - June 2023

- For the first six months of 2023, a total of 5,049 Adult investigations were completed, with 62% occurring in rural areas and 38% in urban areas. In the last six months of 2022, there were 4,906 adult investigations completed, with 62% in rural areas and 38% in urban areas. This is an increase of 143 adult investigations.

ADULT PROBATION OFFICER CASELOADS

Nebraska Probation officers supervise probationers in 12 judicial districts, serving all 93 counties in Nebraska. Caseloads are not measured by felony and misdemeanor but rather by risk to re-offend. Probation uses assessment instruments and screening tools which assist an officer in determining supervision intensity and level.

CBI Caseloads Urban Vs. Rural Districts June 30, 2023

- The average caseload for Adult Probation CBI Officers was 29 individuals for rural areas and 33 for urban areas. CBI cases involve the supervision of a high/very-high risk to re-offend specific probationers group. 48% of adult probationers are CBI, which can be felony or misdemeanor.

CBR Caseloads Urban Vs. Rural Districts June 30, 2023

- The average caseload for Adult CBR Officers was 73 for rural areas and 125 for urban areas. CBR cases involve the supervision of a moderate to low-risk specific probationer group. Thirty-five percent of probationers are CBR, which can be felony or misdemeanor.

SSAS Caseloads Urban Vs. Rural Districts June 30, 2023

- The average caseload of an Adult Probation Specialized Substance Abuse Supervision Officer was 21 for rural areas and 23 for urban areas. At the end of June 2023, a total of 1,308 (10.9%) of the state's adult probation system are involved in SSAS.

Specialized Substance Abuse Supervision (SSAS) was created in response to prison overcrowding experienced in Nebraska specifically in the 2000's. Drawn from evidence-based practices, SSAS is a sentencing alternative that combines intensive supervision with substance abuse treatment as a means of crime control. Highly trained officers work with a select population of individuals experiencing substance abuse or dependency and have also been identified as having anti-social, pro-criminal tendencies.

The target population for the program are individuals with substance abuse problems; probation has developed risk assessment tools to identify appropriate candidates. Founded on evidence-based principles shown to reduce recidivism by targeting the treatment needs of the probationer, the program combines substance abuse treatment in the community with intensive case management by specially trained probation officers. We have added several other classifications such as Reframe and all classifications are listed in our Annual Report found online.

GOALS OF SSAS

- Lower Levels of Recidivism and Relapse
- Address anti-social-pro-criminal thinking and activity
- Address contributing substance abusing behaviors

JUVENILE PROBATION CASES

The juvenile justice system strives to provide supervision and services for youth and families impacting community safety, habilitation, and behavior change. Youth in the justice system receive a validated risk/needs/responsivity assessment which assists in the creation of an individualized plan, including adolescent development approaches which research has shown, reduces continued delinquent behavior.

The highest level of supervision for youth on probation is the Juvenile Community-Based Intervention (JCBI) level. JCBI combines intensive supervision with treatment and non-treatment services that correspond with each youth’s risk to re-offend and needs. The Juvenile Community-Based Resource (JCBR) level, is a lower level of supervision in its intensity for the youth on probation, while under community supervision for optimum success.

Juvenile Population Served
Jan - June 2023

- From January 1, 2023, through June 30, 2023, 3,617 youth on probation were supervised.
- Active youth cases for the first six months of 2023 totaled 3,617 with 1,934 cases (53.5%) in rural areas compared to 1,683 cases (46.5%) in urban areas.
- For the first six months of 2023, there were 1,882 (56%) youth served at the JCBI level and a total of 1,509 (44%) youth were served at the JCBR level.
- The Other category consists of youth that have a case management classification status that are awaiting assessment results or is being served prior to adjudication or disposition.

JUVENILE DETENTION INTAKE

Nebraska state statutes § 43-250 through § 43-260 authorize probation to facilitate the juvenile intake function. This is accomplished through a standardized assessment tool that is administered when law enforcement contacts probation to assess an intake decision. The detention screening instrument examines the youth’s risk of further law enforcement contact before the next court hearing and the risk of failing to appear for the court hearing.

Juvenile Probation Intake Screenings
Urban vs Rural
Jan - June 2023

- Juvenile Probation Intake Screenings for the first six months of 2023 totaled 843 with 62% occurring in urban areas and 38% in rural areas.
- Of the intake screenings completed, 309 were detained as a result of the intake.

JUVENILE PREDISPOSITION INVESTIGATIONS

Probation officers complete comprehensive investigations including both the youth and family which aid the court in making dispositional decisions. Once a youth is adjudicated and the predisposition investigation is ordered, a variety of assessments and screening tools are administered as part of the investigation to make recommendations to the court. Completion of a comprehensive investigation early on in the juvenile justice process identifies the targeted supervision and service needs that are most effective and will result in risk reduction and successful completion of probation.

- Juvenile Probation investigations completed for the first six months of 2023 totaled 1,997 with 818 (41%) for urban areas compared to 1,179 (59%) for rural areas.
