on and so there will be controversy as to who exactly is named in any of these situations but I think that is unavoidable.

SENATOR MARESH: Thank you.

SPEAKER MARVEL: Senator Murphy, the floor is yours.

SENATOR MURPHY: I, too, have a question of Senator Newell if he would yield.

SPEAKER MARVEL: Senator Newell, do you yield?

SENATOR MURPHY: Senator, I am thinking down the road if we select a proper person today and then thirty or forty years hence--no, let's see. You are younger than that, sixty years hence when this body might deem that yours would be an appropriate name. Would we then be faced with the proposition of removing someone's name? If we get into this business of naming structures and things and really it is more or less self-defeating inasmuch as there is no way to alter or update it and I think we might possibly do a disservice to some future individual who would be very deserving.

SENATOR NEWELL: Senator Murphy, I think that is an excellent question and one I thought about when I prepared the resolution. To answer that question I think that there should be some changes and some modifications ten, twenty and thirty years down the road. The situation, however, I think is as any other situation would be. These portraits would be property of the State of Nebraska. They can be moved to Legislative Hall or to other parts of the body which, where we would provide recognition and the hearing rooms could then be changed to some other political figures who have since then deserved recognition. I think that this can be done and will be done as every other decision is made in state government. Nothing lasts in perpetuity. No one which should deserve the recognition in perpetuity and I think that we still need to recognize these people and that can be done in other ways.

SENATOR MURPHY: Is that expressed in your resolution, Senator?

SENATOR NEWELL: No, it is not, Senator Murphy, and the reason I did not express it is a similar answer that I gave to Senator Maresh that by making these things specified that they be reviewed and the way I was going to
