

SENATOR KEYES: Well, Mr. Speaker, when I look at what Senator DeCamp come up with, his reasons why the Chair should be overruled, I am amazed. I am amazed at Senator DeCamp, went to bed and went to sleep. He would have dreamed the far better dream than he thought while he was awake. In my dreams, the wildest dreams I have you will find that Senator DeCamp's dreams are mild. I have fat dreams that go far beyond the dreaming of Senator DeCamp. Now let me tell you a little something what is happening here on the floor of this Legislature. In relationship to the fact that whether we should overrule the Chair, whether the Roman centurions and the Roman Senators should overrule the Emperor of Rome. For North of the Tiber River stood the Helvetions for thirty years and the Roman centurions stood in the Tiber River and designed below that sat the centurions, sat the Senators of Rome and the Emperor and for thirty years they tried not to do anything. Why? Because they were afraid they sat on the floor of that Senate and they argued and they discussed and they argued and they discussed until the time come that Rome fell and that is exactly what is going to happen to this State of Nebraska. That is exactly what is going to happen to the United States, my friends, if we keep on. Let me tell you, there was a man stood on a hillside back in Virginia and do you know what he said? He said, "The world will little note there long, remember what we say here, but it will never forget what we do here", and let me tell you, my friends, if we keep on arguing and discussing and absolutely doing nothing and persecuting the people of this state, we will never know how well off this nation was until it comes to this time. I ask you right now to over...I don't want to overrule the Chair or what I want to do. No.

SPEAKER MARVEL: Senator Lamb.

SENATOR LAMB: Call for the question.

SPEAKER MARVEL: The question has been called for. Do I see five hands? The question has been called for. For what purpose do you arise?

SENATOR NEWELL: I would ask for a ruling, Mr. President. The ruling is, do you feel this has been debated long enough and then before I say that I would like to preface this with, you did agree early on to allow me to speak on this issue. Now the other lights are on and I have not spoken on this issue. The only think I spoke to was a point of order and I think it is important that I speak to this issue and I have a point of order that I would like to raise, some issues that I think are germane and I would ask if you feel that this has been debated properly at this time?
