mean anybody who doesn't have to pay taxes when he works but can admit that he makes money, otherwise it could be a gangster because some of them don't pay taxes either. So we want to keep this thing just like it ought to be. I am going to behold how much good is wrought by the Senators who insist so much on having prayer and religion, how they conduct themselves. I want to see if anybody gets angry again, because Jesus said anger rests in the bosom of a fool, and since there is going to be prayer and religion certainly the advice of Jesus is going to be followed. And all the other things in the Bible, Old Testament and New Testament. Wine is a mocker and strong drink is a raging, and whoever is deceived thereby is not wise. So the lobbyists are going to be able to cut back on a lot of what they have to spend now because liquor is probably the most expensive single item, so since we know that strong drink is a mocker and whoever is deceived thereby is not wise, there won't be any more of that.

SPEAKER MARVEL: You have thirty seconds.

SENATOR CHAMBERS: Senator Dworak, I have but one word to say in closing in behalf of your amendment, hallelujah.

SPEAKER MARVEL: The Chair recognizes Senator Higgins.

SENATOR HIGGINS: Mr. President, I would just like to make a few comments to Senator Chambers. A couple of days ago we had a resolution here to honor a black Protestant Minister, Martin Luther King, Jr., and I voted for that. I didn't vote for it because I approved of the riots that he caused in the Southern states, but I voted for it because he was a Protestant Minister who was doing what he in his conscience thought was right, and if Martin Luther King, Jr. were alive today and wanted to come into this Chamber and offer a prayer, I would vote for that also. I think prayer has a special place in government because as Senator Chambers so eloquently said, we are all so simple and we don't pray with the idea that we will instantaneously become impeccable but just so that for a short time anyway we will remember that we are all supposed to be brothers and sisters, and perhaps for that short time to uplift our minds and remind us that we should before we vote or make a decision think about the righteousness and the morality of it. Whether it is a Protestant, a Catholic, a Hebrew, or a Muslim, we should all honor the religions of each of us, and I honor even those who choose not to believe in a Creator but prefer to believe that they are an accident of nature. If that is their
