PRESIDENT: You don't have to yield.

SENATOR HABERMAN: Yes, as long as it is a popcorn question, I will yield.

SENATOR WAGNER: Well, maybe it is. Do you have an Attorney General's opinion about your popcorn?

SENATOR HABERMAN: When I get an opinion from the Attorney General about popcorn, you are going to be afraid to read it.

SENATOR WAGNER: Well, I will show you one that basically right now says the North Loup popcorn is better than any popcorn in the State of Nebraska, and that is a standing opinion from the Attorney General.

SENATOR HABERMAN: Yes, but he is sick.

PRESIDENT: And with that we will go...Senator Beutler, you surely don't want to referee this?

SENATOR BEUTLER: Mr. Speaker, I wish you would bring this to an end because I don't think there has been a kernel of truth in anything that has been said.

PRESIDENT: We are going to be in recess for a few more moments. Oh, Lowell Johnson, I guess I should have to recognize for your own defense.

SENATOR LOWELL JOHNSON: I was going to mention that I had a letter from the Attorney General this summer saying that he had rendered Senator Wagner a decision on the basis of what he had tasted and he hadn't tasted North Bend's. I have been delaying all day getting that in here but the Attorney General is sick today but rather than wait any longer I thought we had ought to proceed with the distribution of some nourishment.

PRESIDENT: With that clarification for the record, I think we all feel a lot better. Now we are at ease just for a few more moments. Then we will get the Attorney General's opinion.

EASE

PRESIDENT: The Legislature will resume in session. We have the Attorney General's opinion that we have been waiting on. The Clerk will read the entire response to Senator Warner which I believe, Mr. Clerk, has the question that Senator Warner asked, does it not, in the body of the opinion?
