PRESIDENT: Thank you. Speaker Barrett, you have some messages for us.

SPEAKER BARRETT: Just an announcement, Mr. President, tomorrow we will convene on the floor at 10:00 a.m. for the purpose of introducing bills. Tomorrow will be the first day for the introduction of bills. We will convene at ten o'clock. We will recess for lunch and reconvene at one-thirty tomorrow afternoon for the purpose of inaugural ceremonies. The Escort Committees for tomorrow's activities have been published, have been mailed to your offices. You will also find, attached to tomorrow's agenda, a copy of those Escort Committees who will be asked to function tomorrow. Ten o'clock in the morning, one-thirty in the afternoon, it should be a reasonably short day. Bill introductions begin tomorrow. Thank you, Mr. President.

PRESIDENT: And, also, I understand, Speaker Barrett, that we are in recess Friday. We do not meet. Is that correct?

SPEAKER BARRETT: Thank you, Mr. President, we are in recess Friday.

PRESIDENT: All right. Also, might remind you that the Unicameral Club meets at two-thirty this afternoon, for those of you who were not here, at the special room west of the Capitol. Senator Coordsen, since you are Chairman of Labor, we would like to work you a little right off the bat. Would you like to recess...or adjourn us until tomorrow at ten o'clock.

SENATOR COORDSEN: Thank you, Mr. President. It is always an honor for me to be able to adjourn this body. I would respectfully move that we adjourn until one-thirty tomorrow afternoon.

PRESIDENT: You have heard the...

SENATOR COORDSEN: One o'clock...ten o'clock. I should listen, I really should.

PRESIDENT: Would you like to start over?

SENATOR COORDSEN: I would love to start over, given that opportunity. I would move that we adjourn and come back into session at ten o'clock tomorrow morning.
