SPEAKER BARRETT: (Gavel.) Senator Wesely.

SENATOR WESELY: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. Again, this amendment deals with the problem of Title XX child care services. If you recall, we started to discuss this matter. I did pass out some materials on it that went through the type of criteria that would have to be met in order for a family to qualify for these services. The problem that we haven't adjusted these rates for something like six years or more, that they are so far below market rate that you can't, in these poor family situations, even get child care. And, if you are lucky enough to get it, you are really faced with a problem with what kind of quality of care you get, unless the provider is quite generous and compassionate, because the rates of reimbursement are so low.
