SENATOR CHAMBERS: Mr. Chairman and members of the Legislature, debate ceases, the curtain rings down, the door clangs on a constitutional right that citizens have had. It's a practical impossibility to obtain a successful conclusion of every effort you put forth on the floor of this Legislature especially when you give yourselves to issues of substance and that are considered controversial. This one would be considered controversial only because the courts want it, it will hurt the people, but the people don't have a lot of those on the floor today speaking in their behalf and for their rights. I think it is atrocious what is being done by the Legislature in supporting this proposed constitutional amendment especially when I hear such passionate pleas for savings and loans bailouts, bankers, Ak-Sar-Ben will have its passionate supporters. Some people are going to want to give farmers money to kill off little animals
