

March 7, 1990

LB 923

SENATOR WESELY: Yeah, as I understand it, if you're trained, you get a certificate.

SENATOR NELSON: All right. In other words, we don't need all of them certified, we only need one, see, and the balance are...

SENATOR WESELY: No, no, no.

SENATOR NELSON: ...are workers. When did that change?

SENATOR WESELY: That didn't change. That's what I...I just said that, as I understand it, if you have training, you get a certificate. I mean...

SENATOR NELSON: Well, but there's a difference. There's license, there's certified and there's trained workers and then there's the asbestos licensee, see. And, for example, our schools and so on, our head maintenance man only needs to be certified and the balance of the workers trained in satisfactory method of doing...doing the work, see. And, by the way I read this amendment, I would say that all employees would have to be certified and I don't think that's the intention. I just kind of want a clarification.

SENATOR WESELY: Yeah, I don't...I don't think there's a problem but we can certainly...the Health Department is back there and if you want to sit and ask them. I...as I understand it, this is not going to cause a problem.

SENATOR NELSON: I'm not saying one way or the other but that wasn't the way I understood it and I caught this as all employees. I'll go back and check. Thank you.

SENATOR WESELY: Yeah, would you, please. Thank you.

SPEAKER BARRETT: Senator Smith, please.

SENATOR SMITH: Thank you, Mr. Chairman. I would like to ask Senator Wesely a question for clarification purposes, if I might.

SPEAKER BARRETT: Senator Wesely.

SENATOR SMITH: Senator Wesely, I have read your results, your sheet that you passed out, results of LB 923, and the third