

SENATOR HALL: If it is not considered a public school program and there are no private school dollars going to provide it, what is it?

SENATOR WITHEM: If there are no private school dollars going to provide it, it would probably be a public school program. I just don't know, Senator Hall, about the van program.

SENATOR HALL: And I appreciate that, I don't either. I mean that is the reason why I am asking the question. My point is this is that I don't...I think in terms of the amendment as Senator Hefner offers it, and the example that he gives with regard to Hartington Cedar Catholic, I clearly can understand the financial impact because what happens there is those kids pick up and they go to Hartington High and they take these classes, isn't that right, Senator Hefner? Yeah, they just go over there and take shop or they take home ec or whatever, but in the case...in my district, for example, and I happen to sit on the local school board, private school board, and it is...we had to redo the electricity because the van kept blowing out our...we were so poorly put together, we had to, whenever the van would pull up, all the computers would shut down in the school, both of them. My point is this is that do we count those people in my case because I don't know that, and if we do, it is my belief when you are dealing with 35,000 kids, in the school down in my area very many of them use that service, that special ed Chapter 1, that remedial reading, math and other things in those programs. That van is there I think a couple days a week. Do we count those, because if we count those on a proportionate...

SENATOR LABEDZ: Thirty seconds, Senator Hall.

SENATOR HALL: ...basis, then that is a heck of a lot more of a fiscal impact than $30,000, and I think before we adopt this amendment, we ought to know that because that has a big impact on a district the size of Omaha's OPS.

SENATOR LABEDZ: Thank you, Senator Hall. Senator Korshoj.

SENATOR KORSHOJ: Question.

SENATOR LABEDZ: The question has been called. Do I see five hands? I do. All those in favor vote aye, opposed nay. Have you all voted? Have you all voted? Record, Mr. Clerk.
