

the divine or that their holy book alone has the truth. And I do have some people that definitely feel...and I described those people in the confrontation I had with them this morning, that their holy book is the only way and has the only truth. The Parkridge Report goes on to say, most probably wouldn't argue their position that way, they know it would not influence you. They will appeal to conscience, reason, feelings or intuitions, just as nonreligious people do. But religion is important because it also expresses other things that have to do with life and choice. These include ways of life nurtured by long told stories, intimate community or congregational life, motivations to speak up for those who cannot, for the sake of divine justice, intensity born of intuition, a sense of duty that issues from concern to obey God or some divine call. Those speaking for those who cannot...

SPEAKER BARRETT: One minute.

SENATOR MORRISSEY: ...are also on both sides of the issue. Pardon? One minute, Mr. Speaker? Those speaking for those who have no voice are also on both sides of the issue, the poor, the impoverished, the uneducated, and on the other side those whose concern falls with the fetus. I will continue this later. Thank you.

SPEAKER BARRETT: Senator Hall, please.

SENATOR HALL: Thank you, Mr. President, and members, I rise to oppose Senator Chambers' bracket motion. Senator Chambers has thrown in the towel. He can't make the additional four hours that it takes to keep his word so he's put up a bracket motion. He runs with his tail between his legs and he leaves the Chamber after his bracket motion is successful. He's tired. He needs nourishment. He needs sleep. He needs additional newspaper articles to read from. Senator Landis has no more statistics from Dr. Sanguinary. So we have a bracket motion because Senator Chambers no longer has that burning desire in his heart to stay. He cannot deal with this issue any longer. His partners in debate have left him to carry the gauntlet himself and he is tired and he needs to sup in order to continue. Ah, Senator Chambers, I never thought I would see the time when you would throw in the towel so easily, with four hours to go. But I have an article to read and it's from the Christian Science Monitor. Thursday, March 29, 1990, just yesterday, comes a day late. And it's a column that's headed by a justice. It says, a
