

April 3, 1990

matter how long you've been in the Legislature, no matter how long you've been on this Earth, you can learn something. And when you see something of value that works, that's what you ought to latch onto and make it work for you. I'm going to do all that I can to oppose the motion and discourage the Legislature from doing this, so that should they go ahead and do it I'll be able to say, like Pontius Pilot, only I will be telling the truth, my hands are clean, I tried to stop this from happening. But since it did and the Legislature insisted, Senator Lamb has talked about the majority will prevailing, that will be the majority will. And this is one time that I'm going to fall in line behind the majority and follow them. And I hope there won't be any second thoughts, I hope there won't be any grumbling...

PRESIDENT: One minute.

SENATOR CHAMBERS: ...and I hope there won't be any anger. I believe that teaching occurs when one person who knows something imparts that knowledge to somebody who doesn't. I'm going to cast my role, at this point, ...myself in the role of the person who does not know. The Legislature is my mentor, my teacher, my instructor, my guide, my shepherd, and I'm going to see what they teach me by this that we're doing here now. I'm opposed to it, I'm going to vote against it. I will do all I can to dissuade the Legislature from doing it. But once done, as Ceasar is supposed to have said, the die is cast.

PRESIDENT: Thank you. Senator Barrett, please, followed by Senator Lynch.

SPEAKER BARRETT: Thank you, Mr. President and members. I guess just a brief comment or two. I, personally, haven't decided how I'm going to vote on this particular motion. But reference has been made already to the motion on the agenda, Item 6, suspending rules to read bills on Final Reading. And I don't, personally, see that much of an association between the two motions. My purpose in life is to keep the agenda moving, to keep legislation in the pipeline and keep it moving, to make sure that the process continues to function. And the motion that I have offered on the agenda is an effort to read only senator priority bills, individual priority bills, and I think that is my first duty and responsibility. These bills are on Final Reading, they are poised, ready to be read. These bills have been debated twice, General and Select File. The bills