PRESIDENT: Senator Lynch.

SENATOR LYNCH: If that is the pleasure of the body, that is certainly all right with me.

SENATOR SCHELLPEPER: I would like to just give one little comment about my local town that I am honoring but it is up to the rest of the body.

SENATOR LYNCH: Mr. President, I think for those that would like to do that, it's certainly appropriate.

SENATOR SCHELLPEPER: Can I just go ahead and give mine then?

PRESIDENT: Yes.

SENATOR SCHELLPEPER: Okay, I just will then. The town...okay, I will go right ahead. The town that I am honoring is the town of Snyder. It is a town, I think if you ever have seen any of these large fire trucks, it is the home of Smeal Manufacturing, and they send fire trucks clear out over the whole United States. It is a very large manufacturing company. It was formed by one individual. He still owns it. He sends them back to New York, to California, all over the whole United States. It is a town of about 160 people and I think the manufacturing plant employs over 200, so you can see it is very important for that town, but it is a very booming little town in northeast Nebraska in Dodge County. Thank you.

PRESIDENT: Senator Wehrbein.

SENATOR WEHRBEIN: Yes, Mr. President and members, following along the line of what Senator Schellpeper said, I just wanted to call attention to Alvo and Murdock, particularly Alvo because it is unique. The name was derived from the first baby born in the town, that is how the town arrived at its name. I thought it was unique. I would urge you all to read the resolutions. I won't go into more but it's, I think it's, it is appropriate that all the towns across the state, I know there is several here, and we have had some that are celebrating their centennial. It is a mark that Nebraska really is coming of age, of establishing the many towns across the state that have been contributory to our success, and I...don't want, I think we shouldn't take this too lightly, even though I also agree with
