the 25 limit was set in 1979, and $50 more accurately reflects the dollar value. I think...

SENATOR CROSBY: Of what?

SENATOR WITHEM: Of...of items and...you know, the offices are full of those kind of things. I think the one good example that Senator Kristensen mentioned was plaques, groups give legislators plaques every now and then. Technically, if a plaque costs more than $25, you should stand up there and refuse to accept it in front of...in front of a group.

SENATOR CROSBY: Okay, the next time, if I ever get a plaque, I'll say...I'll do that.

SENATOR WITHEM: Okay.

SENATOR CROSBY: Go ahead.

SENATOR WITHEM: Well, those kinds of things. And, frankly, I don't know what else. I don't get a lot of gifts and I don't think many of us do. But items like plaques, the other possibility, I think, the memberships we get to private clubs, I think, are one of those items that if it's...

SENATOR CROSBY: Well, we record those, do we not,...

SENATOR WITHEM: Right.

SENATOR CROSBY: ...on our statements.

SENATOR WITHEM: And, if they are...cost more than $25, we can't accept them. I don't know, I don't know at this point what they are.

SENATOR CROSBY: Yeah, what will this bill do to all that kind of thing?

SENATOR WITHEM: It won't change anything as far as the reporting is concerned. It will up the limit from $25 to $50.

SENATOR CROSBY: Okay, thank you. I guess I'm going to have to go back and value those few little plaques I have, because it hadn't occurred to me that perhaps they cost more than 25, and I hadn't thought of them as an honorarium. So I still don't know
