

one of the longest movies I ever saw in my life. I've never seen it from beginning to end at one time. It starts about eight in the morning and it goes all through the afternoon and on into the evening and into the night. There is Henry Fonda in it. There is Jason Robards. There is Charles Bronson. Then there is a lady whose last name is Cardinale. And each one had a little theme song to signal you that this person is coming on the screen because it's so long that you might doze off and to let you know which one is your favorite is coming, then that's what will happen. Well, Henry Fonda was working for this guy on the railroad. This guy on the railroad became fearful of Henry Fonda. Henry Fonda had some of his gangsters who were to keep guard on this guy from the railroad. Well, since they were hired, this guy simply offered them more money than Henry Fonda had offered them. So these guys turned on Henry Fonda. They were loyal to Henry as long as he was able to give them the most of what they wanted. When one came who was offering a higher price, they placed themselves in that individual's service but because of the complexity of the plot, which I won't go into now because I don't have enough time, Charles Bronson helped Henry Fonda...

SPEAKER BAACK: One minute.

SENATOR CHAMBERS: ...survive the attempt by his former loyal individuals to kill him. When Senator Kristensen raises the kind of issues he does about rural health and things, I don't even know what he's talking about. But trying to give the impression that I'm using this bill as a forum to attack all those things, he lost me. And I will read his remarks and see if I can understand, by reading them, what I didn't understand by hearing them. But the point is this, you are taking away, with this bill, rights of appeal to the Supreme Court that people had. You're putting people into a three-judge panel. The panel that sits in Scottsbluff to hear a case may decide that case differently than the way it would be decided under similar facts by a court of three judges sitting in Lincoln. So you have a conflict because you get one type of justice...

SPEAKER BAACK: Time.

SENATOR CHAMBERS: ...in Scottsbluff, a different kind in Lincoln.

SPEAKER BAACK: Thank you, Senator Chambers. Before we go to
