

wrong with this. So I would ask for your support to have the arguments on a case in the Supreme Court judicial district where the decision appealed was rendered, and that the judge of the Court of Appeals shall reside and maintain his or her office in the Supreme Court judicial district from which he or she was appointed. And it shall be staffed the same as the Supreme Court. We give them the same staffing. The state court administrator shall make arrangements for office space and court rooms to be used for the Court of Appeals. Every county has a court house, every county has a court room. Every community can find office space. I see nothing wrong with us saying, to the Supreme Court of Appeals, the Court of Appeals, you shall do your business in the district from which you were appointed. Thank you, Mr. President.

SENATOR KRISTENSEN: Well, no, not really, because their functions are so different at this point. I mean...

SENATOR HABERMAN: So the answer is no.
