

more of your time...

SENATOR CROSBY: Yeah, okay.

SENATOR NELSON: ...but I've been asked.

SENATOR CROSBY: Yeah, because...well we do have the Withem amendment, but as you say, people don't always read. I know that. I'm in that position a lot of times where they hand you a stack of stuff and you don't get it all read. The other thing I have to agree with on this whole question is I have...both sides know that I have some doubts about the judicial bypass process, because when you're first pregnant and you don't feel very well, mostly, you have a feeling of lassitude. And I'm not sure if I would go into an abortion clinic and say, I want an abortion, and they say, well you can't have one until you tell your parents and/or go to some judge. I don't know what I would do. I'd probably go out and do something terrible, or have the baby, or forget all that, because you'd probably go home and take a nap and think about that, because from that point of view I do have a few problems with the whole thing, even though I believe strongly in parental notification and help to those young women who need it, at a time when they really need it. So I have one other question. Senator Will, you confused me just a minute ago. Is he here? Or maybe...oh, okay. Just...what was that line about the private schools? I mean you're going to have a school nurse at a private school...

SENATOR WILL: As a...

SENATOR CROSBY: ...do the same thing? I don't know that you can do that.

SENATOR WILL: As drafted right now, this amendment would apply to both public and private schools.

SENATOR CROSBY: Do you think we should amend to take private schools out?

SENATOR WILL: That is something...

SENATOR CROSBY: I'm serious, I'm not...you know, I just hadn't thought about that before.

SENATOR WILL: That's been discussed. I have no problem,
