about what Senator Lindsay said is he talked about these advertising campaigns and that's what we're getting, the subliminal message is making doing away with people more palatable. It concerns me that we want to take the lives. We are getting...

SPEAKER BAACK: One minute.

SENATOR CROSBY: ...to the point where it's not a right to die, it's an obligation to die, because of health care costs. And, Senator Wesely, what does health care costs have to do with a living will? It doesn't cost as much now to have that quick gall bladder operation as it did when I had it when I was 38 years old. So if that bears, all right, but I really can't see the point of bringing health care costs in at this particular stage of the game. But the thing that does concern me is that we are getting the message that it's not a right to die, it's an obligation to die, and I'm going to quote something from Ecclesiasticus which is the preacher book which you will not find in the King James Version of the Bible. And this is what I think we have to remember, this is personal, it's about people and it's about you and I looking after someone who is terminally ill or aged or whatever. SPEAKER BAACK: Time.

SENATOR CROSBY: ...have patience with him and despise him not when thou art in thy strength, for the relieving of the father shall not be forgotten." See, that, for me, that's what we're talking about today is how we take care of each other. I'm sort of in the middle on the whole thing, haven't made up my mind yet. Thank you.

SPEAKER BAACK: Thank you, Senator Crosby. Senator Lamb, you're next.

SENATOR LAMB: Thank you, Mr. Speaker, and members, this is...this is an issue which I do admittedly not know a lot about. However, in listening to the debate...don't turn around and look at me like that, I thought I would suggest that...well, I had some bad news for you folks recently and that is that I had an insurance physical examination and the doctor said I was going to live a long, long time, and I know that is bad news for
