

to contact the Attorney General on each of the bills that are before us dealing with personal property tax, requesting whether or not any additional appropriation, in the opinion of the Attorney General, is necessary.

SENATOR MOORE: That would be a possibility to pursue. I would argue that most of them are not in the limelight and debate on the floor for two and a half weeks, but that's...I mean what you're saying is absolutely true.

SENATOR WARNER: No, not for two weeks. I was just wondering if you would make sure that the fiscal office makes sure that those sheets that are sent to agencies would be also sent to the Attorney General's office, that would cover all the various bills, if there are significant differences in perspective litigation costs between them. That would be helpful and certainly would give an indication if one approach is more expensive to litigate than another, I can't imagine that. But I suppose it's possible. But my specific question is, would...could I...or do I need to make the request, or would you make the request that all of these property tax bills would be...a request would be made to the Attorney General if they have any fiscal impact.

SENATOR MOORE: If you're talking about all the property tax bills, yeah, we could do that together, if you want to, or I will do that, if that's what you want to do. That's no problem.

SENATOR WARNER: That would be appreciated, if you would do that.

SPEAKER BAACK: Thank you, Senator Warner. Any other discussion on the amendment by Senator Moore? Senator Moore, do you wish to close?

SENATOR MOORE: Mr. Speaker and members, as I mentioned in my opening, the problems of this bill are numerous, certainly in my opinion, from the LB 775 situation where you do not have...even purport to have uniformity within class, from the 4-R problem with which the majority of personal property is not being taxed, even though one of the major arguments in support of the bill is that it will keep such railroads on the tax rolls, those railroads will go to court with a string of powerful attorneys. And in my opinion, and my opinion only they will win that case. You have the problem of using a depreciation schedule, and in
