SENATOR WARNER: One minute.

SENATOR CHAMBERS: ...exist between me as an incumbent and whoever chooses to run against me, and people have run against me before, I've never gone out to try to raise large amounts of money. To me, a campaign or an election is a contest. That's what it is. It should be based on a choice and the people should be able to see what manner of person the candidate is and that's why I don't even do a lot of campaigning. My record has to speak for itself and I do have an opponent. If that individual raises $50,000, I'm not going to go out there and try to do it. If the people in my district will let that person, through the expenditure of money, get this office, then they get what they deserve and that person is entitled to have the office because he was wise enough to do what was necessary to get the votes. I'm not one of those who raises a lot of money and spends a lot of money and, therefore, am against campaign limitations of any kind, but I'm against this bill because it does not do what it professes to do.

SENATOR WARNER: Time. Senator Beutler.
