

September 29, 1992 LB 20

better than to have had children. And if she got pregnant, she should have had sense enough to get an abortion. So we have all these conflicting messages.

SENATOR WARNER: One minute.

SENATOR CHAMBERS: The woman who will marry a man, and he turns out to be a rat, who will get impregnated and carry the children to term, is then treated like she's a fool. You shouldn't have married him, you should have seen he was a rat, or, if you had to marry him, you shouldn't have gotten pregnant. But once pregnant you should have gotten an abortion. So that's what they say to the woman who jumped through all the hoops that she was supposed to. If another young woman listens to this and she gets pregnant and gets an abortion, then she's a slut, or a tramp, or a whore, or a bitch, or if you're educated you call her a trollop. But all of these negative terms attach to women and there are no equivalent negative terms to attach to a man, no matter what he does. In fact, if he did the equivalent thing on the male side that will cause all these negative things to be hung on a woman, then he's kind of lauded for that, and he's given credit for being...

SENATOR WARNER: Time.

SENATOR CHAMBERS: ...a great lover, a stud, or whatever these other things are.

SENATOR WARNER: Senator Crosby.

SENATOR CROSBY: Thank you, Mr. President and members. Thank you, Senator Chambers, for dividing this one amendment so we can vote on this particular thing, because again I think if I can't have the whole loaf, I guess, and end up with half of it or a third of it, that's better than nothing. I still feel that we should leave the program as it is and not touch it. I think most of you who know me well understand that I always try to vote and help people who are in need. I've introduced, two or three times, a bill which would raise the valuation for the homestead exemption, because as costs escalate and values escalate, there are a lot of elderly people whose exemption may have gone away because of the way the house is valued and because of their income and so on then they don't get that homestead exemption. When I introduced that one time I remember the cost was maybe like $6 million, and the Revenue Committee