SENATOR CHAMBERS: While you were being required to pop that hide?

SENATOR JENSEN: Yes, I have.

SENATOR CHAMBERS: So you've worked in the hide cellar.

SENATOR JENSEN: No, I did not.

SENATOR CHAMBERS: Oh.

SENATOR JENSEN: There was a time I could have done that, I sure couldn't do that today.

SENATOR CHAMBERS: Did you ever take a hammer and try to kill...do you know what a beef kill is?

SENATOR JENSEN: Yes, I do.

SENATOR CHAMBERS: Do you know how they kill these animals?

SENATOR JENSEN: Yes, I do.

SENATOR CHAMBERS: How do they kill them? How do they kill them?

SENATOR JENSEN: Well, at what time, today, right now?

SENATOR CHAMBERS: Yeah.

SENATOR JENSEN: Because that has changed also. They used to be struck over the head with a hammer.

SENATOR CHAMBERS: Now, do you feel...oh, that's all the questions I will ask you.

SENATOR JENSEN: Thank you.

SENATOR CHAMBERS: Senator Jensen has had no experience at working in a packinghouse. It didn't take me a lot of time in that packinghouse to know how bad a job it was. You used to could go over there, and if you wanted to work a day, you sat in this little room and then they called people in. And whatever job was available, you'd do it. And I'm glad that the hide cellar was my first experience because I did not want this grand
