

It adopts the immoral principle that the end justifies the means. You have no welfare. you have no growth of urban, suburban, and rural areas. What existing values are you trying to preserve? All of that is inconsequential to me. If you are talking about stimulating the growth of population, how can you talk about that and then being against teenage pregnancy? There is another contradiction. The very thing that is happening is what you say you don't want, but those pale into insignificance when I look at this indictment of capitalism. There sits my friend Senator Matzke, just sitting there agreeing to this indictment. Where is Senator Brashear? Senator Brashear, the anticapitalist stands back there in his glory. I am not calling him a communist. I think you can be against capitalism and not be a communist. I am against capitalism. I am not a communist, but tonight we are all against capitalism. Senator Avery, I would like to ask you a question.

PRESIDENT ROBAK: Senator Avery.

SENATOR CHAMBERS: Senator Avery, do you believe that the economic problems of this society cannot be dealt with effectively by the ordinary operations of private enterprise?

SENATOR AVERY: No.

SENATOR CHAMBERS: So, you believe what this says that private enterprise is incapable of solving these problems?

SENATOR AVERY: Private enterprise can do some. There is other needs and means to tackle those problems.

SENATOR CHAMBERS: What can private enterprise not do with reference to economic development? I thought this bill is trying to promote private enterprise, isn't it? Are we going to condemn this property for a public purpose or to turn it over to a private operation, a private business?

SENATOR AVERY: My understanding, I didn't think we were going to condemn any property.

SENATOR CHAMBERS: Then how are you going to get the land?

SENATOR AVERY: They'll buy it.

SENATOR CHAMBERS: Then you are against this bill?
