

property. So if there is a school, that maybe somebody doesn't want to have there anymore, include it and it is substandard. I'm not going to offer any amendments to this bill. I'm just trying to mention some of the things that I wish we would have had the time to discuss and I'm also doing this to indicate that when some of us request or state the need for more time to discuss a bill, it does not necessarily mean that we have amendments to offer. It means that there are issues that need to be discussed, need to be explained and maybe the ones who support the bill would like to offer amendments. I could not begin to fashion amendments for all of the problems that I see in the bill but since it's not my bill, it's not my obligation really and we don't have the time. Maybe there is such a tight schedule that the supporters of this bill feel that with all of the defects that may exist in the bill, they have to close their eyes, hold their nose, cross their fingers, utter a silent prayer and say whatever Gods there may be, I want to be on good terms with all of you while offending none of you, understand my plight and let this bill be sound, but if it's not, and if Micron comes here and this bill is an inducement, and the bill is found to be unconstitutional, that's not the end of the story. What that means is that the Governor will call us back into special session and he will put the whip to the backs of those who are amenable to that kind of persuasion and order another bill to be passed and it will be passed.

SENATOR CROSBY: One minute.

SENATOR CHAMBERS: But it would be so much better if some of these things could be dealt with. I understand that there are legislative staff members who are working hard to try to answer questions and resolve conflicts in the bill, but they don't have the authority to rewrite the bill. Those of us on the legislative floor with a vote don't even have the authority or the wherewithal to make any rewrites. In view of the fact that Senator Beutler has an amendment, I'm going to let this that I'm saying now end the talking that I'll do now and maybe on this amendment some of the issues will come up that I had a concern about.

SENATOR CROSBY: Thank you, Senator Chambers. Senator Coordsen is next, followed by Senators Lindsay, Vrtiska, Warner, Preister, Withem and Brown. Senator Coordsen.

SENATOR COORDSEN: Thank you, Madam President and members of the
