

people, they are allowed to do it without being in violation of this bill. So their sacred God-given right to discriminate is left intact. We are talking about people who are properly discharging the duties of a job. We are not talking about any sexual conduct in the workplace because that is not tolerated even from a heterosexual unless it's the boss, and our laws prohibiting sexual harassment came into being not because homosexual predators and wolves were out there converting and lesbians were hiding in the women's commode to pounce on unsuspecting females, it's because male bosses were using their position in an unfair way to wrest sexual favors from females.

PRESIDENT ROBAK: One minute.

SENATOR CHAMBERS: Heterosexuals have been the problem. Heterosexuals have been involved with pedophilia to a much greater extent than homosexuals, but that conduct is not allowable under this bill to anybody. Anything which is a crime would still be a crime, but we shouldn't even have to discuss it in those terms. We're talking about people who want a job. The labor unions favor this approach, the large companies, the university. This is an enlightened mainstream activity and if you look out at the handouts that I gave you and you see all those religious organizations, churches and groups, it should let you know that we are not doing anything unheard of. It is not radical, it is decent, it is right. It is not creating special privileges. It is attempting to eradicate senseless injustice and discrimination.

PRESIDENT ROBAK: Thank you, Senator Chambers. Senator Crosby.

SENATOR CROSBY: Thank you, Madam President. I'm not quite sure what I'm going to do on this bill. There are a variety of elements that come at you when you bring up a bill like this and Senator Chambers certainly has outlined all the problems that anyone that has any kind of different lifestyle than we do is up against. But I come at it from a different point of view perhaps. I'm going to mention one thing in particular that I think we should think about because of something that happened in our family 50 years ago or more. Ever since then, at that time when we were told what the problem was, we were, of course, wide-eyed naive. I had never actually known there was any kind of orientation like that. But what happened is that a homosexual man married a woman who did not know until after the marriage that he was a homosexual. He had married her to cover
