

that or not, but somebody allegedly said it. A conference, such as this, that starts with so many contradictions is not on the level. I believe there are sincere people in this Legislature supporting this idea, so when I talk about venal, loaded, and hidden agendas, I am talking about the slick politicians who have really been in that game a long time and know how to get things done through other people, as in this country, there is a government: that people see and there is an invisible government that gets things done. Now with this proposal that we have here, the people supporting it, this conference of state governments, will say anything necessary to make a point. Governor Nelson does not read things carefully. I don't know if he reads them at all. I am sure he couldn't participate in this debate, but on this Pictorial Summary that I handed to you, there are things that are contradictory provided about what this conference is about, what it is going to achieve and how certain things will be done. They are talking about Congress not being able to ignore a constitutional majority of states, but it doesn't take a constitutional majority of states to bring this corporation into being or to function as a corporation. So if you don't even have...why don't they say, I will back up, that before this conference is called, a constitutional majority of the states legislatures must agree, then at least you've reached the threshold based on the number who attend. That is not a guarantee that you will get that entire number to agree to anything. But if you get less than a constitutional majority of the states to even participate, what is the likelihood of getting them to agree in a number that constitutes a constitutional majority of all the legislatures. This is just the beginning of a bigger, broader, even sinister activity. Legislators are going to run along and approve of something like this, saying it is not that important. Then when the noose draws tight, they will wonder why in the world did I stand on a stool, put a noose around my neck, and give control of the stool over to those whose interests are contrary to mine. Then they kick the stool out and there I am dangling wondering what is it all about, Alfie, and how did I get here. Because people have no respect for legislatures, this whole thing proves it. If you read the material they gave us, you would be alarmed, or if you have a great deal of calmness about yourself, you'd at least be interested. As for wanting to take shots at the Governor, that is not my intent. I don't believe in child abuse. To have a man like the Governor sitting at a basketball game when he knows early the next morning he has to give a decision on whether....
