

environment not to do what they shouldn't be doing anyway. That was from the Denver post. I think the full ramifications on something that seem very straightforward and very innocuous are far from that and that we should raise concern with this measure and particularly those of us who are concerned about bureaucracy. Those of us who are concerned about costs of government need to look very carefully at this legislation. I support Senator Chambers' motion to bracket the bill and would encourage everyone else to do likewise. Thank you for listening.

SPEAKER WITHEM: Thank you, Senator Preister. I would recognize guests. Under the north balcony from Senator Lindsay's district, we have Ron and Nora Kohles, and in the north balcony we have 48 fifth graders from Milliken Park Elementary School in Fremont, along with their teacher. Would you please all stand and be recognized. Senator Lynch.

SENATOR LYNCH: Mr. Speaker and members, this is unique. I couldn't help but notice because sometimes people stand up and talk until they think they have something to say around here or try to find something to say and use the whole five minutes. Every once in a while we have the good fortune of hearing somebody like Senator Preister who really has something to say but, unfortunately, there are people over talking to each other who should be interested in this issue and listening to his point of view. There are some people that seem to go out of their way to talk after they have their say and, in fact, I think in a very unfortunate way offend the integrity of the whole debating issue. So I'm going to just offer Senator Preister my five minutes. So, in case you didn't hear him the first time because you were too busy talking to each other, you get a chance to hear it again, because what he had to say was important. Senator Preister, you've got my time.

SPEAKER WITHEM: Senator Preister.

SENATOR PREISTER: Thank you, Senator Lynch. I certainly appreciate your consideration and your concern. And don't know that I will take all of the five minutes but appreciate the opportunity. Will also say, mea culpa, mea culpa, because at times I have talked to other people in the body and we do have other business to tend to. I would reiterate though that the unintended consequences and the example that I cited of a very small Missouri community of 146 people in Lincoln Township is
