we are putting in place legislation, which does not require accountability of those who are going to enforce this law. We always disconnect from reality, when on the one hand we talk about the problem legislation is aimed at, and then look at the legislation, itself, that we enact. If liability and accountability are what we want to enforce on those who must pay child support, let us put the same requirements in the legislation on those whose duty it is and into whose power we place it to enforce this legislation. We are in a volatile area, and what I think I will do is collect a few of the articles where as a result of domestic problems distraught individuals have killed the woman, killed lawyers, killed judges. So far they haven't killed legislators, but they have become so distressed as a result of the way the laws that Legislatures enact have impacted on them. So we need to think about the world beyond the halls and walls of this Capitol Building. When we put legislation on the books and it becomes a law, there are people who are going to cause it to impact on real living...

SPEAKER WITHEM: One minute.

SENATOR CHAMBERS: ...human beings who often are in a very stressful, angry, combative situation. With that in mind, we need to be very careful that nothing we put in place pours gasoline on a fire. To require the most care and circumspection in the enforcement of this law is not unreasonable. I don't think that is in the law, in this bill, as it currently stands. There are a few of us who I think will have to assume the responsibility to ensure that bad legislation does not come from the Chamber. I am going to try between now and Select File to find the time to draft some amendments. Whether they are adopted or not is a another...

SPEAKER WITHEM: Time.

SENATOR CHAMBERS: ...matter, but they must at least be presented.

SPEAKER WITHEM: Senator Day, you are recognized to close.

SENATOR DAY: Thank you, Mr. Speaker and members. I appreciate the discussion we have had on this legislation. Senator Chambers, I too want to have this bill go out in the best possible form that we can do it, and I am more than willing to
