

didn't have any jurisdiction over or it sat around, the case sat around for a while without any action on them. Is that...is that correct?

SENATOR WARNER: Well, partially. There was, under the existing process, why if they simply did not have jurisdiction, if that was the issue, then it might be discontinued quite quickly. But the practice was...and I'm not too sure what the statute required, but it certainly didn't prohibit it, was that after a preliminary investigation it was found that there just simply was no cause for any further action. They still were required to pursue and did the complete investigation which was one of the things that frequently took a lot of time and probably the greatest harm was that time was taken away from the...

SENATOR CROSBY: One minute.

SENATOR WARNER: ...legitimate complaints that really needed to be pursued and not delayed as...as the backlog frequently occurred. So...

SENATOR SCHIMEK: Right. So I think this should be very helpful. And, Madam President, am I the next speaker also? Madam President.

SENATOR CROSBY: Sorry.

SENATOR SCHIMEK: Am I the next speaker also?

SENATOR CROSBY: No.

SENATOR SCHIMEK: How far down the list am I?

SENATOR CROSBY: I'm sorry.

SENATOR SCHIMEK: How far down the list am I?

SENATOR CROSBY: Your light is not on.

SENATOR SCHIMEK: Did you just turn my light off when Senator Beutler gave me the rest of his time?

SENATOR CROSBY: I'm sorry. Beg your pardon.

SENATOR SCHIMEK: I think I was next on the list.
