

sometimes more flexibility to handle those things but oftentimes they still have some of the pains and the fears for...

SENATOR BERNARD-STEVENS: Time.

SENATOR KRISTENSEN: ...that neighborhood.

SENATOR BERNARD-STEVENS: Thank you, Senator Kristensen. Senator Chambers.

SENATOR CHAMBERS: Mr. President, members of the Legislature, where did Senator Fisher go? Senator Fisher, I'd like to ask you a question or two.

SENATOR BERNARD-STEVENS: Senator Fisher, would you yield to a question.

SENATOR CHAMBERS: And while he comes to his mike, I'll ask him the first one. Senator Fisher, you talked about how successful these prisons in the Florida swamps are. Tell me one prison in a Florida swamp. Make it easier for you, what city is closest to this swamp that you talked about?

SENATOR FISHER: I have to apologize because it's after five o'clock and I sent my staff home and I can't find the article. I saved it, but I don't know. It's one I read. I'll get it to you tomorrow.

SENATOR CHAMBERS: What did this...did you read the article yourself?

SENATOR FISHER: Yes, I did. I wouldn't be dreaming this up.

SENATOR CHAMBERS: How was the success measured? You said the most successful...

SENATOR FISHER: Their theory was this. Their theory was this, that they did not want any of the other environment that these young folks were in. They wanted to take them out of that environment, put them out in an isolated area. This individual showed the road into it, I remember seeing the picture and alligators along the side and these people were trained, retrained and worked in an area that was remote from the rest of Florida. Now I'll have that to you tomorrow, but I...