

with it. But I wonder...well, Senator Lindsay is busy so I'll continue my discussion. I believe that the first amendment up is the one that I had mentioned to you all. And I think Mr. Landis, based on the Journal, is the one who offered this and ordinarily David just...David Landis I'm talking about can usually get some consideration from me that maybe others don't automatically get. But I knew David back in the Watergate days. That's when he washed in here on a tide of reform. He's become a little more conservative around the edges since then but that's to happen as people get older. I'm even becoming a bit more radical around the edges as I get older, but, nevertheless, I must deal with this bill and I will tell Senator Landis this. Even when it was in the Judiciary Committee, I had difficulty with some of what was in it so I'd like to ask you this question if you don't mind. Is...

PRESIDENT ROBAK: Senator Landis.

SENATOR CHAMBERS: ...Senator Landis, the book that I have in which this is attached starts with page 1472 of the Journal and continues through the next few pages, is this that appears on the pages that I mentioned the bill as it was originally introduced or does it contain amendments that the Judiciary Committee had added?

SENATOR LANDIS: It contains the Judiciary Committee amendments, Senator Chambers. And in the event we get a chance to take this measure up, I think you'll find that it incorporates the changes that the committee made when it reported it out.

SENATOR CHAMBERS: So if we do get to this and there is about an hour...Senator Lindsay, how much time do we have before you would be eligible to invoke cloture? Senator Lindsay doesn't know but by midnight, around midnight. Senator Landis, if we have a good and thorough discussion of this and Senator Lindsay attempts to invoke cloture, your amendment would get its vote no matter what I may do on it. And I will discuss it the full time. And if I can irritate your colleagues enough with me because I don't like the bill, then they will vote for it just to punish me further. Because when they get a guy down, the like to kick him but I can take it. But I did want to find out if those amendments were incorporated and that would indicate that the bill is in better condition, in my opinion, than it was at the time it was introduced to the committee. I just haven't had a chance to review it in this form. But I'm saying all that
