

what you all were doing and I listened. And I knew that the reconsideration wouldn't be successful and Senator Lindsay had made grumblings about withdrawing the whole thing because he was not being treated in a way that was...and you know what I get? Thank you, Mr. Clerk. A whole sheaf of amendments that I had drafted which have been rendered nugatory. I don't know if that's appropriate, but I just thought it would go along with succulent. But at any rate, all that I really wanted to be sure today was that I did not lose the location of that facility. And I did get all those letters about economic development, and sometimes the Legislature plays into my hands when I haven't even planned it. When you live right...when you live clean and think right, things just fall off the tree right into your hands. I saw a movie called "The Mighty Quinn" and it took place on one of the Caribbean Islands. And there was this young guy and he was called "Mawbi" and I can't spell it any better than perhaps the transcribers otherwise I would spell it. And there were all kind of myths and legends about him. And Denzel Washington was some kind of law enforcement officer on this island and he had a little boy. And he was telling his little boy things about "Mawbi" and how he would just stand under the coconut tree and the ripest coconut with the most delicious milk would just fall into his hand. Today I feel like "Mawbi." Today I feel something like Darth Vader when he was on the trail of Luke Skywalker if that was a young kid. He got him in his sights, he said, I have you now. I have you now. I have what I wanted. And I want to thank you all for having Senator Lindsay withdraw his amendment and by so doing preserve what I wanted to preserve. I didn't really lose anything because none of my amendments did we reach. Knowing the attitude of the body, can anyone seriously think I believed that an amendment that I would offer to this crime bill would be adopted? Certainly not. But if some of you would read this bill and see all of the confused material in it, you'll know why this time I'm not too upset about its passing. I don't know if Senator Beutler wants to talk to you about what we have been discussing, but you need to look at all this talk about earning this good time and these programs that are developed and some people are going to want to tell you like Senator Lindsay, well, there won't be many lawsuits. Don't kid yourself. There are people in the institutions who will read legislation more thoroughly than members of the Legislature and there is much grist for their mill in this book. Let's say that we have a situation and this is a hypothetical completely. You say in order to get this three months discretionary good time on top of the three months
