

SENATOR CHAMBERS: ...if it was done?

SENATOR WEHRBEIN: ...I guess that's a difference of opinion. I was told that they did not physically touch those humans in that case. Now I was not there, but...

SENATOR CHAMBERS: And you believe what you were told?

SENATOR WEHRBEIN: Well, I was told that in a very adamant voice, that they did not touch, they did not force anyone up against the wall or whatever it was, yes.

SENATOR CHAMBERS: And if I'm able to obtain some footage of that, would you be willing to kill this bill...

SENATOR WEHRBEIN: Well, I wouldn't go so far..

SENATOR CHAMBERS: ...because you were lied to?

SENATOR WEHRBEIN: I wouldn't go so far as to kill the bill, I would look at your language a little more closely. But I...I...that's as far as I would go on it.

SENATOR CHAMBERS: Thank you. Members of the Legislature, whether you put this in the law or not some people think that what happened to Rodney King should have happened. Some people think when these cops were setting dogs on black youngsters during the so called Civil Rights days, which are coming back now, that that was all right. And I'll show you pictures, Senator Wehrbein, where these dogs were not going for appendages. I will show you those pictures from national magazines. And, Senator Elmer, let me ask you a question. Are you back there?

PRESIDENT ROBAK: Senator Elmer.

SENATOR CHAMBERS: Where is Senator Elmer? Well, let me ask Senator Schmitt a question because Senator Schmitt knows something about these dogs.

PRESIDENT ROBAK: Senator Schmitt.

SENATOR SCHMITT: Yes.

SENATOR CHAMBERS: Senator Schmitt, Senator Elmer was going on
