change that. I'm saying this not in opposition to the rule, but indicating don't feel like if we pass this rule suddenly we're going to have a smoothly flowing machine here because it's just not going to happen. We, as individuals, are going to have to start taking on more of this responsibility.

SENATOR CROSBY: Time. Thank you, Senator Withem. Senator Chambers.

SENATOR CHAMBERS: Madam President and members of the Legislature, Senator Withem and Senator Warner did touch on something which is very crucial but what Senator Warner talked about is something that we, as a Legislature, can't control at all. Even if we'd offer a proposal to do away with limitations, it's up to the public and they would not vote for that. I'm not going to steal what Senator Beutler said about all of this time, but it's awfully tempting. I won't do it. I'll let him sit it if he wants to. But, Senator Withem, you'll notice that when I'm on one of these issues and I'm discussing it at length and I say if we stay here till midnight I am here to turn out the light if necessary. I don't get the fire started and then run off somewhere. You never find me in the lounge. You never find me having lunch brought to my desk. You never find me doing any of those kind of things. When I say an issue is important to me I demonstrate it by my participation. I am here. I am the one, I'm the only one that I know of, who said when we start out in the morning early at eight we can stay here till midnight and I'll be here. I think I'm the only one who said it and I've been here and I've continued to participate and I will. The Legislature is not my life nor my wife, but I was expected by the people who voted to send me down here to do certain things and, to be completely frank with you all, I have exceeded the expectations and the requirements of everybody in my district and they wish that I wouldn't work so hard as they see it 'cause they think it's going to kill me and at some point they won't have me down here. But I tell them, well, I'm going to die some time, but not before the people who I'm serving with right now. That makes them feel better. But I tell them, remember this, something worse may come after the Pharaoh that you have sitting the throne right now. The point I want to try to make is this. After we've had these debates and there has been anger, heat and acrimony, usually people begin to get tired, things simmer down, things slow down, people take a few deep breaths, there's an attempt by everybody to try to become friendly, or whatever the
